MEDIA RELEASE

15 October 2013

NEW EXECUTIVE FOR NATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL LAW ASSOCIATION

Amanda Cornwall was re-elected as President of National Environmental Law Association of Australia at the Annual General Meeting last week.

Amanda became President in 2012 and has led the association through major change.

'In the past year we've established partnerships with Australian universities, climate change groups and most recently with Sustainable Business Australia,' she said.

'We've also collaborated with the American Bar Association, Canadian Bar Association and the UK Environmental Law Association on a new joint international newsletter.'

NELA is the leading national environmental law organisation in Australia. It promotes debate about effective regulations and incentives to protect biodiversity and cultural heritage, and facilitate sustainable development drawing on the expertise of its members.

'We're lucky to have an active and talented board of directors and I'm looking forward to working with them' said Amanda Cornwall.

Other members of the board elected at the AGM are:

Danyelle Kelson	Vice President and Queensland
Nick Wimbush (new)	Treasurer and Victoria
Ellen Geraghty	Secretary and NSW
Hanna Jaireth	ACT
Sarah Waddell	NSW
Brendan Grigg	SA
Kathryn Walker (new)	SA
Jan McDonald (new)	Tas
Jessica Feehely	Tas
Annaleen Harris	WA
Fiona Collin (new)	WA
